To Perry Township High School goes the George L. Walter Larson's "Heroes of Obscurity" was awarded highest honors by the judges, the verdict being unanimous.

Second honors, carrying a silver medal, went to Miss Grace Hayband representing Dunbar Township High. Her subject was "Law Enforcement the Supreme Need of the Hour." Miss Hayband was awarded second honors last year.

Miss Mary Louise Edell, representing South Brownsville, won third place for her rendition of "The Aztec Indian Woman." She was awarded a bronze medal. Uniontown High held third place last year.

The judges, unknown to the audience, speakers and directors, until ready to make their decisions, were Prof. J. A. Allison, teacher of education and psychology at California Normal; Mrs. G. L. Chumplin, also of California Normal, and Miss Margaret Walsh Martin, head of the public speaking department of the Scottdale High School.

One of the largest crowds that ever attended a literary contest was assembled for this first of the series of literary contests.

J. D. Sheetz, principal of the German Township High School, acted as chairman and introduced J. B. Snyder, secretary of the Fayette County School Directors Association, under whose supervision the contest is being held. Then in alphabetical order he introduced the speakers.

Seven schools were represented although nine had submitted their selected orations. Nicholas Boni, representing Dunbar Borough, presented "Guarding American Ideals." Followed by R. L. Brown of Pittsburg, who gave "Evolution of an Idea." George Hooper, representing Georgetown Township with "Qualities of Success." Miss Mary Smith represented German Township with "The Unrewarded Hero."

Secretary Snyder, in behalf of the Fayette County School Directors Association, gave a short address on literary work. "Literary work has been neglected and too much attention given athletics," he said. "Although it is an art of athletics, I must say for its devotee more of our time on literary work, something that can be of more value to us in our old or life," he continued. "Public speaking has been neglected too long. But by looking upon the records the past two years we find that interest in this line of work is beginning."

The prizes were not presented to the contestants and will not be until after the complete series of literary contests have been completed. A banquet will be held at the end of the contest and there will be all of the prizes and awards will be made.

The German Township School Orchestra rendered a worthy program, and the school quartet, composed of James Gault, Lloyd Deffenbaugh, Marcus Penckus and Frank Christopher, rendered several selections.

Rain Is to Follow Springlike Weather

Today, with its balmy breezes, was anything but what might be looked for in March. Getting an early start this morning the sun became exceedingly warm about noon and sent the mercury high into the 60 degree column, with the prospect of topping the 70 mark before the end of the afternoon. At 11 o'clock 50 degrees had been reached. The weather today appeared with that of a year ago when the thermometer registered 72 degrees. A freezing temperature was barely reached in some sections last night while the official thermometer recorded 34 degrees as the lowest figure. Rain is the prediction in today's weather forecast, with a cooler period to follow tomorrow.

ELL MAY TAKE OVER FIRE ALARM AT MT. PLEASANT

Town Without Service Owing to Damage by Storm to Tri-State System.

TO REPAVE MAIN STREET

Special to "The Courier."
MOUNT PLEASANT, March 4.—The chairman of the fire and water committee reported at the meeting of council last evening that Mount Pleasant had been without fire protection, so far as an alarm system is concerned, since the storm of two weeks ago. Fire calls are being sent through Bell telephone office, the operator calling the borough building and the pump house. The fire alarm system is now on the Tri-State lines. The secretary was instructed to ask the Bell Telephone Company to see an estimate on the cost of taking over the fire alarm system, including care of police lights.

Five dollars a night was allowed Glen Harrison, Joseph Painter, Lloyd Shaw and "Bo" Holmes for watching the Wednesday night after the storm for fires. The fire alarm system was down, heads out and most of the telephones in town out. On Tuesday night, Chief Granhart had 12 calls from 12 o'clock until 6 on Wednesday morning.

Councilman S. F. Stevenson reported a demonstration of the rear gas meter, but no action was taken on the matter.

Following an opinion by borough solicitor Eugene Widen on the legal aspects of the repaving of Main street, council authorized the preparation of petitions for the work. They will be circulated at an early date.

The fire, light and water committee was instructed to confer with the fire department relative to the proposal that the department take over the care of the fire trucks. It is proposed that instead of having regular paid drivers, members of the volunteer department act as drivers.

Burgess, William (trickster) reported nine arrests, with fines totaling $112. Byers-Hamilton.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Margaret Jane Byers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Byers, and Gordon Barnhart son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barnhart at the Main street home of the bride Thursday evening, February 28.

Diphtheria Report
Health Officer Harry McIndoe reported to the board of health at its meeting one case of diphtheria, and four cases of chicken-pox. He was instructed to go before council and ask for a public dumping ground. Mr. McIndoe went before council last evening in behalf of the dumping ground. No action was taken.

W. T. T. News.

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Massena, N. Y.—"I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I can't praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use those facts if my letter will help other women who are suffering."—Mrs. DEBBIE BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N. Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice.

These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs. Isn't it reasonable to expect the same results?

If you have pains and a dragging-down feeling and are nervous and irritable, profit by Mrs. Bush's experience and give the Compound a trial.

Restraint. "Before we were married you called me an angel!" "I know it."

"And now you don't call me anything."

"You ought to be sincerely glad that I possess such self-control."

Simple coughs, or stubborn coughs, it doesn't matter which, this home made mixture will stop them quicker than any expensive cough syrup you can buy ready made.

Get from Connellsville Drug Co., or any druggist one ounce of Paracetyl (double strength) in this add a little granulated sugar, as directed, and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it, and children like it.

Like a soothing, healing poultice, one easily substance in this home cough mixture spreads itself completely over the membrane of the throat. This causes the most stubborn hang-on cough to cease almost instantly. No ordinary slow-acting cough syrup contains this expensive ingredient. Advertisement.

Gay and Neutral
Tones in Fashion
Green, Yellow, Red, Orange,
Plain Colors on List for Spring.

Everywhere the radiance of spring is reflected in gay and neutral tones with white always predominating, says a fashion correspondent in the Portland Oregonian. Greens, especially in soft moss and almond tones, carry the honors with soft yellow a close second. Then there are the red and orange tints so numerous that there is a color for every one and a new one it will be, too. Plain colors, especially in pastel tints combined with white, are very chic just as bright colors were a season ago, but there is a new note expressed in Palm Beach coloring today. Roman stripes and plaids combine many colors in the one fabric and thereby offer a wide range for the designer's imaginative art in suggesting of the possibilities for the wearer to establish her own individuality through her selection of accessories.

The Chinese influence is with us for another season. This is evidenced by the coloring "love apple red," not totally different from lacquer or tile red, and the soft greens, night well be described as Chinese green. Distinctly Chinese designs are appearing in patterning crepe for sport wear. Many suggestive of these points, or Chinese handle and forms. Printed silks most suggestive of spring are absolutely irresistible in their small, closely spaced, all-over 1920 motifs. The fabric itself is usually crepe and the backgrounds vary as to color. Daring horn designs both large and small, and drenched motifs suggesting brook and white, make striking contrasts and are undeniably chic.

Town's Water Tank Was Ruined by Woodpeckers

Woodpeckers have caused a sensation in Sully, Ia.

First they culled the town water tank. That threw a perplexing problem on the city administration. Besides that they have blasted the theory of biologists that a woodpecker pecks for worms. He pecks for the sake of pecking.

Back in 1922 the birds drilled so many holes in the water tank that the insulation against freezing was ruined. Workmen put up the holes and patched over the putty.

But the woodpecker is a wise bird and perseverance is one of his main outstanding qualities. In the summer of 1923 they pecked all the putty out of the holes. The woodpecker likes his pecking soft.

When the recent cold spell came on the town water supply suddenly gave out.

The city engineer scratched his head and declared he was sure the tank was full of water, then immediately he found the tank full of pe and his putty all pecked away.

That threw the situation onto the political brows of the city councilmen. Mayor Fred Andreas has announced that the present plan is to tear the plant down and put up a "lock-proof" one.

It will be up to the scientists to explain about the birds preferring nice, soft putty to peck in rather than wood.

Let the Kiddies Romp Outdoors In All Weathers

There Is Nothing Like Fresh Air Play to Build Sturdy Bodies. If Colds Come Treat Externally.

Children should play outdoors daily in winter as well as in summer. To keep them indoors so much is a mistake. For healthy growth they need and must have lots of outdoor exercise.

Of course some colds will come as a result of exposure. But constant internal dosing must not be thought of.

Vicks answers the need. It is externally applied and can be used frequently without upsetting the digestion.

When rubbed on over throat and chest Vicks acts externally like a liniment or plaster. At the same time the ingredients, absorbed by the body, are directed directly into the affected parts.

Vicks is the ideal treatment for children's cold troubles.

DISABLED VETERANS WARNED TO PRESENT COMPENSATION CLAIMS

W. B. Parker, commander of Milton F. Newmyer Post of the American Legion at Dawson, calls attention of the necessity of disabled veterans of the World War presenting their claims before they become outlived.

Disabled veterans, he says, are warned by General Frank T. Hines, director of the United States Veterans Bureau, to present their claims for compensation immediately as the time limit will soon expire. The War Risk Insurance Act specifically states:

"That no compensation shall be payable unless a claim therefor be filed in case of disability within five years after discharge or resignation from the service, or in case of death during the service within five years after such death is officially recorded in the department under which he may be serving, provided however that where compensation is payable for death or disability occurring after discharge or resignation from the service, claim must be made within one year after such death or the beginning of such disability."

The time herein provided may be extended by the director for not to exceed one year for good cause shown. If at the time that any claim accrues to any person under the provisions of this article such person is a minor or is of unsound mind or is physically unable to make a claim, the time herein provided shall begin to run until such disability ceases."

Claims should be filed at any sub-district offices of the U. S. Veterans Bureau, which are located as follows in District 3:

Philadelphia, S. W. Corner 20th & Arch streets.
Pittsburgh, Allegheny Building, First Ohio avenue & Sandusky.
Scranton, D. & H. Bldg., 507 Lackawanna street.

The Cottage Gardener

Housewives Find Both Pleasure and Profit in Caring for the Little Vegetables or Flower Garden in the Rear of the House; and There is Always Plenty of Work to Be Done.

Insects, Diseases of Garden Crops

Bugs and Blights Are Sure; Prepare in Advance for Their Appearance.

Practically every garden crop has its enemies either in the form of insects or diseases, and in many cases both. It has now reached the point where it is just as important for the gardener to fight these enemies as to plant the seeds and cultivate the crops. The methods of control for both the insect and disease enemies of vegetable crops have, however, been pretty well worked out, and practically every dealer in seeds and garden implements carries a stock of nicotine sulphate, Spraying to Kill Insects.

Tab all soap, lead arsenate, calcium arsenate and bordeaux mixture. The directions for using the various sprays and dusts are usually given on the packages. In addition, bulletins can be procured from the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, which tell how to spray and dust garden crops to destroy insect pests and similar publications are available on diseases.

Insects that trouble garden crops are divided into two classes, those that eat the leaves or stems of the plants and those that suck the juices of the plants. Insects such as cutworms, cabbage worms and potato bugs, and a number of others of the eating class, have to be killed mainly by poisoning. The sucking insects which include the plant lice of various kinds have to be killed mainly by contact poisoning, which is accomplished either by dusting or spraying with nicotine preparations. There are also such insects as the striped cucumber beetle and the flea beetles, both of which are very destructive, but which can be destroyed or driven off by dusting with arsenite sulphate dust.

When it comes to controlling diseases certain of them can be handled by spraying with bordeaux mixture. Others, however, are of such a nature that they work within the plant, and, therefore, cannot be reached by spraying. Cucumber blight and the leaf blight of tomatoes can be reasonably controlled by spraying with bordeaux mixture. With and those diseases which work in the tissues of the plant cannot be handled by spraying and must be safeguarded against by planting in clean ground and by using plants that are free from these diseases. The old adage "A stitch in time saves nine," applies in a double measure to the control of garden insects and diseases. In fact, every gardener should go upon the assumption that the bugs and blights will come and that it is necessary to apply the remedies often in advance of their appearance.

Onions Good Crop for Small Garden

Staple That Should Be Considered for Summer and Winter Use.

Onions are one of the most generally grown garden crops of the whole list and yet very few gardeners produce more than enough for green onions in the spring, and possibly a few mature onions for winter use. This is due largely to the fact that gardeners are in the habit of going to the seed store and buying a quart of onion sets, planting them and calling the job done. As a matter of fact, there are onions for almost every purpose and those that mature at different times of the year. First, the little multiplier or top onions can be planted in the fall and in cold sections given a little covering of straw during the winter. Farther south they will need no protection whatever. These are ready for use as green onions just as soon as the first warm days of spring arrive and later produce sets to be planted the following autumn. Then there are the old-fashioned potato onions which multiply by division of the bulbs. These can be planted in the fall or in the spring as desired, and are used both as green and as mature onions. They are very mild in

Flavor and of excellent quality.

Bermuda and Spanish onions can be grown by sowing the seed in the hotbed and transplanting the sets to the open ground when they are about the size of a slate pencil and the soil is in condition to work. This is known as "new" onion culture. There are a number of summer varieties of regular summer onions such as Silver Skin, Yellow Globe, Red Globe, Prize Taker, Japanese, and so on, that are suitable for producing onions that are in best stored and used during the winter. Very little space is required to grow enough onions for family use, as a bushel of mature bulbs may be grown on a space 10 by 11 feet in size.

RESEEDING LAWNS

If you haven't reseeded the lawn, you must get busy at once. There has been enough growth of grass now to show you clearly those bare and killed-out patches. Make up your mind that grass will not grow on these bare spots unless you plant seed quite generously in the barren spaces and enrich the soil with fertilizer. Sheep manure (pulverized) is particularly good for this purpose.

Don't Pay $1,000 or More for a car, without knowing what the leader offers in the fine-car field

WE made a canvass of many who bought rivals of Studebakers. We said, "Tell us why you liked your car the better." The majority said, "We did not even look at the Studebaker." Most of them bought new models of the car they owned before.

Yet Studebaker is a leader in the fine-car field today. Studebaker builds more quality cars than any other plant in the world.

Studebaker is the sensation of modern Motordom. Its amazing growth signifies a new situation in this field. Last year, 145,167 fine-car buyers paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars. Nearly three times as many as in 1920.

Is it fair to yourself—or fair to us—not to learn the reasons for this trend?

Facts to consider

Studebaker assets are $90,000,000—all staked on satisfying, better than others, buyers of high-grade cars.

Over 23,000 men have their future at stake on giving you maximum values.

$50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment, of which $32,000,000 has been added during the past five years.

$10,000,000 in body plants to give you superlative beauty. To give that final touch for which Studebakers have been famous for decades.

125 experts who devote their whole time to studying betterments. Who make 500,000 tests per year to maintain our supremacy.

Consider Studebaker history. For 72 years this concern has stood for high principles and policies.

For two generations, at least all the world, it held first place in horse-drawn vehicles.

For years its name and fame have been committed to like attainments in fine motor cars.

If you only knew

There is no room here for details and comparisons. You will find them all in Studebaker showrooms. But let us cite some significant facts.

That lack of vibration, so conspicuous in Studebakers, costs us $600,000 yearly in extra machining of crank shafts.

That matchless strength in vital worked out to exactness for supreme service in its place.

We employ 1,200 inspectors to make 30,000 inspections of the material and workmanship in each Studebaker car—before it leaves the factory.

Consider how Studebaker has always led in the building of high-grade cars. We were first to use cord tires as standard equipment. We were the first quantity manufacturers to build bodies of the highest grade.

If you want beauty, fine upholstery, rich finish and equipment, consider that Studebaker has had more experience in fine coach building than any other motor car maker.

Our place no accident

The pedestal place which Studebaker holds in the fine-car field is not the result of accident. It comes from principles as old as this business—the ceaseless and determined ambition to excel.

Learn the result of these efforts. Compare detail by detail, part by part, with any car you wish. When you foot the advantages, you will find that they number scores.

These are facts you should know. They are inducing 150,000 per year to choose Studebaker cars.

Some sell at $1,045. Some meet with every requirement in size and power and luxury. But the chassis are all alike, save in size. The same steels, the same standards, thorough-out. Every important Studebaker part represents the best we know.

People have learned these facts—hundreds of thousands of them. The demand for Studebakers has almost tripled in three years. It has become overwhelming, even for our facilities. Investigate the reasons. You will find them by the scores. Then, if you choose a rival car, we shall have nothing more to say.

See the Studebakers

Studebaker builds more fine cars than any other plant in the world.

Last year 145,167 wise motor car buyers paid $201,000,000 for Studebakers.

The demand has almost trebled in the past three years. Studebaker now holds a leading place in the high-grade field.

Our modern plants and their equipment cost $50,000,000. All to give you the maximum value at the minimum of cost.

It is folly to buy a car in this class without knowing what we give.

parts comes from the costliest steels. For some we add 15% to the quoted price to get exactness in them.

That Chase Mo'air, used in our closed cars, is made from the soft fleece of Angora goats. Cotton or ordinary wool, or a combination of both, could reduce our price $100 to $150 per car, but it would sacrifice Studebaker quality.

Note the bumpers, the steel trunk, the extra cord tires, the motorometer, the courtesy light on some models. Figure what they would cost as extras.

The infinite care

THE SUPREME PASSION, a picture splendidly interpreted today at this theatre. Jim Holt loves Mary Manning for her beauty. His love is ever, loves Jerry Burke who has been disowned by his father because he has dared to love a girl of humble origin. Determined to have Mary, Jerry gets her father in his power so that to save him from disgrace and ruin she agrees to marry Jerry. At the wedding Mary's veil catches fire and she is burned. The doctor says her face will be scarred. Having wanted her only for her beauty Jerry refuses to wed her. Mary will not let even her father and mother see her face. They return to their old home in Ireland to try the magic of the fairy wishing well. Before Mary takes the spell Jerry tells her he loves her whether beautiful or not. Then she lifts her veil and shows her lovely face unmarred—the accident of the wedding veil had been planned to test Jerry's love. It also proved the supreme passion of Jerry's soul for her.

Wednesday and Thursday the Man Who Waited will be shown.

The Soisson

THE ETERNAL THREE, the leading picture today and tomorrow at this theatre features Hobart Bosworth, Claire Windsor, Bessie Love and Raymond Griffith. This is one of Mr. Bosworth's very best pictures and he seems to be born to the role of the service absorbed surgeon. Mr. Griffith acts the role of the wastrel son with rare skill. Some gorgeous gowns are worn by Miss Windsor. Serving the community is the compelling motive of the life of Dr. Walters, a famous surgeon. He has reached middle age and fame and wealth then he marries. But his work claims almost his entire attention and his neglected wife turns to Leonard Flator, her husband's adopted son, for solace, which the profligate young man readily gives. The young man during one of his many escapades of the heart has betrayed his father's secretary and storm clouds are gathering for him when he is dangerously injured in an automobile accident. Only his father's extraordinary skill can save him from certain death. Dr. Walters' conviction of the worthlessness of Leonard's deliberations but decides to save his life. The young man upon his return, a health is given a beating by his foster father and then by the girl's male relatives and decides to go to Europe to begin life over again. Then the doctor determines to pay a little more attention to his wife.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday The Love Bandit will be shown.

"EMBLEMS OF LOVE" will be shown on Thursday afternoon and evening at this theatre under the auspices of the Local Order of Moose of Connellsville.

Emblems of Love, described as a mighty drama of love which combines the loves of life, is a story of humble people whose characters are just folks as the late President Warren G. Harding would say. These characters are interpreted by artists who make them real, lovable folks with their human foibles and frailties. Total devoid of artificiality. The cast includes Jane Tennant, Charles Dolan, Grace Connor, Jane Thomas, Jack Drummer, Bernard Siegel and other well known players of the stage and screen.

The Orpheum

DON'T CALL IT LOVE, the leading picture today and tomorrow at this theatre, presents five highly popular stars Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Nita Mally, Theodore Rosloff and Rod La Rocque in the leading roles. It takes you right into the intimate and private life of a hot blooded, hot tempered opera singer who has as many lives as she has gowns—and that's going some. Miss Mally plays the prima donna and the chap who falls into her silken toils is Mr. Holt as Richard Larrish. Miss Ayres as Alice Melidum, Parrish's fiancée. Mr. La Rocque and Theodore Rosloff as the impresario are all featured. Here's the story—Rita Coventry is a poor girl with a rich voice and marvelous beauty. Going to a little city after a year's study in Paris where her friends had sent her in company with Parrish, she meets a handsome young Irishman who comes to take the piano in her hotel suite. Her sampling tactics are ignored and this pique the proud Rita. She learns that he is a pianist and composer and induces him to play for her. He is wonderful. She falls for him, ignoring Parrish's now Delaney however is still contemptuous. But in the end Rita lauds him and Richard seeing the folly of his actions returns home, faced to Alice and pleads with her to receive him back—and she does so.

(Thursday) Emblems of Love will be shown on Friday and Saturday. Thomas Meighan will be seen in Plant Pipe Moline.

Few Kinds of Fun

Outrival the Gulbransen

When Dad's day's work is done he's entitled to some fun of his own. He's earned a little time to himself. A spell of rest, a change, something different from the usual grind—that's what he needs.

So why should folks be fussy about little things like keeping dinner waiting when a fellow is right in the midst of an all-absorbing, body-and-soul-satisfying little session of music—played by himself and for himself—on his beloved Gulbransen!

Few pleasures afford so complete a change from the workaday grind. Few are so fascinating. Few so thoroughly enjoyable.

Playing is unbelievably easy because of Gulbransen responsiveness and extreme flexibility. And—with your Gulbransen—you get four simple, complete and ex-

Do you wonder the Gulbran-

IN CENSUS WORK FOR 44 YEARS

Chief of Bureau Worked Up From Ranks.

When you want him to talk about himself and he wants to talk about his work what are you going to do?

Usually, you are going to talk about his job.

That is why when set out to be a story of the life of William Mott Stewart, director of the census, developed into a discussion of the census, says Herbert Greer in the Chicago Daily News.

One gathered from Mr. Stewart that it is a pretty satisfactory affair. If any one has been skipped he doesn't know it. Now and then some one happens into the census office and complains that he and his wife and their son in college did not get into the rolls. If he is insistent enough Mr. Stewart can take him out into a neighborhood and find the names.

He may not find the wife's name. It is possible that the census is not so complete as it used to be in this, especially between the ages of thirty and forty-five. But the names are there—110,000,000 of them.

Of course he could not completely evade the question of the census. That gives the impression. He did not try to evade. He merely seemed not to be interested. Observation told him that he is, as he is, a man who is not interested in the census.

He is a man who is not interested in the census. He is a man who is not interested in the census. He is a man who is not interested in the census.

entered by law to make a return.

"Did you ever prosecute a minister for failure to obey the law?" Mr. Stewart once asked an officeholder.

"Who?" asked the politician. "After a minister?" "Say! What sort of a nut do you think I am?"

During the height of the census rush 107,000 people work at it. To do so with success they must know exactly every boundary line—every boundary line of every village, town, city, county, township—in all of the states. And they must be sure of it.

This City's Lines Juggled.

There is a prosperous Western city which conformed manufacturers to settle there by juggling the city lines. A long sewer of county territory was run right into the heart of the city. In it the manufacturers were placed.

There they had all the advantages of city lights and water and fire and police protection, for which they paid farmers' taxes. But when the census was taken that city lacked by a good many thousands the population it thought it had. It made a terrible fuss.

"But there are four lines," said Mr. Stewart. "These people are not in the city."

"Dang it they ought to be," exploded the mayor.

To make sure of these boundary lines there is a geographer's department in the bureau, in which the slightest change anywhere in the United States is recorded.

An even more interesting story of the bureau's job is in the Statistical department. Machines do the part that pen-and-ink men and women used to do. A stack of perforated cards is run through a machine at the rate of hundreds a minute, a lever is pulled and there are the statistics all neatly columned and totaled. There were no more elaborate adding machines in the world, but now that do just that sort of a job.

"What did you get them?" I asked.

"We made them," said Mr. Stewart. "Shake hands with the inventor—George La Motte."

Mr. La Motte shook hands, turning to do so from his drawing board.

"He's inventing another machine now," said Mr. Stewart. "Getting ready for the next census."

Believes in Poultry.

That is the way the census is handled nowadays. It is probably the greatest machine for accounting in the world. It has been popularized, too. When Stewart took charge all sorts of facts were gathered, but they were published in the 10 or 11 volumes of the decennial census. Now the newspapers get daily releases with all sorts of facts. How many married women work for a living, and how many just play around with the frying pan and the baby. What is the bonded indebtedness of Detroit. How many aliens work in the mines. What the country is worth, anyhow.

Forty-four years of government service. Not quite that, for he quit and began the practice of law after he had become the head of the division of manufacturing statistics in the '80s. The next director of the census asked him to come back. He has been promoted, step after step, until now he is the head of the work.

Just as many reports were made in 1910 as in 1900. In Washington have been produced the same way. He works at the census that the government service is a blackwater in which the unfortunates are cast to float.

"Promotion on merit is more certain in the government service than in any private corporation," said he. "If you are in the commercial world the man who handles the instructions of the complexity of any one of the government bureaus would be paid three or four times the government salary."

"But we stay," said he. "We like it. The work is worth doing."

Biggest Fossil Is to Be Sought in Africa

W. F. Cutler of the University of Manitoba had a fellow of the London Geological society sailed from New York on the Cameroon for London.

He is on the Cameroon for London, where, at the invitation of the British government, he will search for what is thought to be the largest fossil in existence.

The fossil, known as the Titanosaurus Africanus, is expected to be found, he said, in a continuous bed of the Mesozoic geological age, which has been slightly investigated by the Germans. It is estimated to be from eight to ten million years of age, 20 feet high and 80 feet in length.

Construction of a submarine railway through the African bush and the service of 100 natives probably will be required to move the specimen, Mr. Cutler said.

Girls Blamed for Fires

Use of electrical beauty machines and cooking devices by girl students of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, caused a number of small fires recently. College officials, having heard the report, are considering preventive measures.

Gay Ankles Twinkle on Under den Linden

Rainbow anklets are the latest novelty seen on Unter den Linden, and visitors to Berlin never tire of looking at the varied assortment of knitted anklets worn by German women.

Since the snow and extremely cold weather of this winter made huper-thermore protection than patent hosiery and silk stockings.

Weather mixtures of all sorts, and flannels, striped, ribbed and checked creations may be seen everywhere, in all the latest combinations of impressionistic shades. Red, green and yellow are the most popular colors.

The anklets are held to the top of the slipper by a strap that fits under the foot inside the shoe.

Horses Become a Menace

Band, Ore.—Wild horses are increasing so rapidly in central Oregon that they are becoming a menace to the range herds of the neighboring sheep and cattle. Low prices for horses have caused ranchers to turn them out, and without the influence of selective breeding, the stock is deteriorating rapidly.

POULTRY

KEEP HENS INDOORS IN SEVERE WEATHER

If you want winter eggs, the hens should not be allowed to run outdoors at all. They will do much better confined in the house all the time than they would out under the old binder or sitting in the same stall at the barn all day.

The main reason for keeping hens in the house is to force them to eat what is necessary to make them lay out of season. They must have a good, well-balanced dry mash in hoppers so they may eat at any time. This dry mash must be eaten slowly so the hens have to spend a good deal of time at the hoppers to get their fill.

They must also have a grain ration and greens of some kind.

There are a number of grain rations that can be used, in fact most any grain that the hens like and is generally grown on the farm is all right. It can be balanced by the addition of other grains in the dry mash. I prefer a grain ration of cracked corn, whole oats, and wheat. Kaffir is fine in the mixture and kaffir and oats alone make a good grain ration, says a writer in Successful Farming.

One of the most important things in the winter care of hens is a good litter of straw or some litter material on the floor. This litter should be six or eight inches deep and all the grain must be scattered in it so the hens will have to scratch and work for their food. The heaviest feed of grain should be given at night, so all the hens will go to roost with their crops full.

Many poultry houses are arranged so the droppings fall in the litter on the floor. This can be remedied by installing a dropping board under the roosts. The roosts can be placed across the back of the house on a level with each other and the platform for the dropping board built under them. Then the droppings can be cleaned out every day or two and the litter on the floor will not have to be changed so often.

The green feed can be supplied either by sprouting oats or by using beets or cabbage that have been stored for the purpose. The best method of feeding, I find, is to give the hens a light grain feed in the early morning. This can be scattered the night before.

The green feed is put out at noon and the heavy feed of grain in the evening before the hens go to roost.

Necessary to Air Eggs During Hatching Period

All experienced incubator operators know the necessity of airing eggs, but some fail to understand why. Yet we know that the chick inside the shell is a living, growing thing and that it needs fresh air, even before it is hatched. The green feed is put out at noon and the heavy feed of grain in the evening before the hens go to roost.

Airing eggs has another merit. The shells expand and contract with heat and cold and this ripens them. By the use of mechanical callipers, one may discover an appreciable difference in expansion of eggs under 80 degrees and over 100. Frequent expansion and contraction of the shell is believed to break down fibers and make the shell brittle, so that chicks due to hatch can get out of shells with less exhaustion.

This matter of airing eggs during incubation requires judgment and should be guided by development of chicks, temperature of room, etc. If we watch sitting hens we will find that eggs requiring need very little airing the first week of incubation, a little more the second, and still more the third week when the vitality of chicks has added to the warmth of the eggs.

It is never safe to forget that chicks are dependent upon air that permeates through the porous shell. Cooling eggs shrinks the air-bubbles and sets up a suction which draws in fresh air to purify the interior stale air.

Plenty of Sunshine and Fresh Air Aids Poultry

Always give your fowls plenty of sunshine and fresh air, the two best disease preventives for man or beast. Ventilation is an important factor in winter housing of a flock of layers, and it should be had without causing direct draughts of air upon the fowls, especially when they are on the roost at night.

This can be easily accomplished by taking out one of the windows, covering the opening with bur-lap in cold weather and fitting it with a sliding door so it can be opened or closed at will. The air-tight or artificially-heated house with its expensive and complicated ventilating apparatus has come and gone.

What you can do with the Traffic Transmission

Change Speeds Without Clashing

Because it represents the solution of the gear shifting problem, this exclusive Chandler feature is generally acknowledged to be the most important automotive improvement of the decade. Be you a veteran driver or an unschooled beginner, you cannot clash gears —cannot fail to make a split-second, positive, silent change to any speed at any time under any conditions.

There is nothing new to learn. You use the clutch and shift lever exactly as before. Only the results are different.

Descend Steep Grades in Safety

Until the Traffic Transmission was developed, the safe descent of a long steep hill was a matter of luck or expert driving. In the Chandler it is now easier.

Regardless of car or motor speed, a three inch movement of the lever puts you into second speed or low—brings the combined compression of six cylinders into instant braking action. No danger of falling to get into gear. No riding the brake pedal or burning out brake linings. That is real safety—the comforting kind.

Park Easily and Swiftly

There is a trick to parking neatly, or there was until Chandler made it easy.

With the Traffic Transmission you never fumble to get from low to reverse—you never hear the gears rasp, rattle or whine. You change to the desired speed at will—the lever moves at a finger's touch. What used to take three minutes of expert maneuvering, now takes twenty seconds in a Chandler. The steering wheel is partly responsible. It requires no tugging—turns with the weight of a hand. Women like that.

Stop Short without Skidding

Skidding and swerving are caused by unequal braking. Even the finest brake systems develop this fault.

There is only one car in which it cannot occur. For only one car has the Traffic Transmission. With it you snap instantly into a lower gear. At once the perfectly equalized braking power of the motor stops the car with the front and back wheels tracking.

And if you know that helpless feeling of skidding toward the curb or ditch, such surefooted safety must have a strong appeal.

Drive Without Worry

Touring is a relaxation of unblemished delight if you are a Chandler owner. You have the matchless, velvety power of the Pikea Peak Motor to take you anywhere. Hills never check its masterful high gear capacity.

city that made Chandler the national performance champion. And as for deep snow or mud—no terrors there! Two or three short, snappy shifts from low to reverse and out you roll before you stall.

(The Traffic Transmission is built complete in the Chandler plant under Campbell patents.)

LABOR AND FARMER POLITICIANS WILL HOLD CONFERENCE

July 4 to Nominate Candidates They Think Will Be Presidential Winner.

R. R. MEN TAKING LEAD

CLEVELAND, Mar. 1.—Leaders of the National Conference for Progressive Political Action are expected to name here in July the candidates for president whom they think will be inaugurated in Washington, March 1, 1928.

The national conference has been called for July 1. It is expected that both Republican and Democratic candidates will be named. It is not the convention will mark time until the Democrats finish at New York. The local conference, which will represent the national leaders in the farm organizations, labor union, railroad brotherhoods, etc., is expected to cover the farmer-labor independent vote.

Neither major party nominates a candidate acceptable to the conference for progressive political action, there is a strong probability that the conference will launch a new farmer-labor party and name a presidential candidate.

The men behind the guns in this proposed party include such figures as Warren S. Stone, Cleveland, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Bert M. Jewell, Chicago, chairman of the Railway Department of the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gomper, president of the American Federation of Labor and other labor leaders, as well as several men prominent in agricultural organizations.

It is no secret that Gomper, in past years has held that labor can do more from within than from without the major parties toward electing men favorable to union labor. Gomper's friends say that he is now pretty well converted to the idea that union labor and the farmers can and should work together.

However, as far as union labor is concerned the railroad brotherhoods and other railroad organizations are taking the lead in the present movement.

The railroad men are strong for McAdoo, if he should get the Democratic nomination and nothing more happens in the oil scandals to disqualify him. However, it is said that the endorsement of McAdoo would be objected to by the farmers and Socialists. On the other hand, if Mr. Coolidge is nominated by the Republicans, union labor, as represented at the

"I HAVE ABSOLUTE FAITH IN FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE"

In a recent letter, Mr. Francis S. Mitchell, former overseas K. of C. Secretary, tells of his experience with Father John's Medicine.

"It used to be a regular thing for me to experience a run-down feeling in the winter time, often catching cold and having a nasty cough and losing weight. But for the last five years, thanks to Father John's Medicine, I have not been troubled much. It relieves my cough and acts as a tonic and enriches my blood. I always gain back my lost weight. I would like to see every one using Father John's Medicine because of its splendid results to health and strength." (Signed) Francis S. Mitchell, 1173 W. Ferry Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Columbus Believed He Found Coast of Asia

The recent discovery of the long-forgotten Continal map of the world is a scientific event of an importance and interest which can scarcely be exaggerated. It is presumably the first map ever engraved and printed which purported to show the discovery of Columbus, and, as it was made only a few months after his death, we may accept it as a cartographical record of the sum total of his theories and reports concerning his exploits. The most striking feature of it is that, while it shows the vast continent of South America, it indicates nothing of Central America, Mexico, or North America, but puts in their place the open Atlantic ocean stretching unbroken to the shore of Asia, though the extreme north of the Asian continent is extended eastward so as to include Greenland, Labrador and Newfoundland. That, of course, was Columbus's conception of the plan of the world.—North American Review.

WASHINGTON HUNTERS SLAY 2,092 COYOTES

Poisoning Is Found Best Method of Ridding State of "Varmints," Says Report.

One grizzly bear can do as much damage during its destructive life as 100 coyotes. Glen B. Bach, predatory animal inspector of the United States biological survey, points out in his annual progress report. On the other hand, coyotes are so much more numerous in the state that while only one grizzly bit the dust in Washington during 1925, government, state and cooperative hunters accounted for 2,092 of the wolf's little brother.

The destructiveness of a coyote during its lifetime is given by Mr. Bach as $60, and therefore the 2,092 coyotes killed during the year had cost farmers, poultry and stockmen of the state approximately $124,800 before their skins went to the tannery to make "blue fox" furs for mink.

In all 2,253 predatory animals were killed by 287 hunters working part time under the combined funds. Mr. Bach estimates that $134,725 worth of damage had been done by these animals.

Cougar and black or brown bear are thought to be equally destructive, $500 being the figure set for each. There were 89 black and brown bear killed during the year and two cougar. One hundred and twelve bobcats, 11 badgers, 15 raccoons, 13 weasels, 1 weasel, 4 skunks and 1 wild housecat were the other "varmints" bagged, according to Mr. Bach's report.

Few of the predatory animals were shot, the majority being trapped or poisoned. "During the winter months hunters confine their work to poison operations wherever possible," Mr. Bach declared. "In some sections where we previously met with opposition we are now receiving requests for our hunters to place out poison, as the stockmen are beginning to realize it is the most efficient and economical method of control."

Control of the coyote population of Washington also minimized the danger of an outbreak of rabies, the report showed. "The disease cannot be stamped out," the report continues, "until the coyotes are totally destroyed or their number reduced to a minimum. When that result is achieved we will have rendered a service to the live stock interests and the human family which will undoubtedly be appreciated by residents of this state for years to come."

Three Tons of Jade

It is said that the largest piece of jade in the world is that in the American Museum of Natural History, in New York. At first glance it looks almost as large as Plymouth rock, actually it is seven feet long and four feet wide. It is not so heavy as Plymouth rock but weighs approximately three tons. It was found on South Island, New Zealand, in 1902 and is of the green variety of jade, with shades that range from apple green to rich emerald.—Indianapolis News.

Buick Character Makes Buick Value

Buick value is something more than appears on the surface. It is more than the excellence and beauty of Buick design—more than the greater riding comfort, power and safety that Buick provides. Buick's value comes from the sum total of all those Buick qualities and traditions which together make up Buick character. A Buick owner fully appreciates Buick character. He knows the dependable, satisfying and trouble-free transportation which Buick gives, however long or however far a Buick owner may elect to drive his car.

CHAPTER XX

Francis and Margaret sat in the rose garden on the following morning. Their conversation was a little disjointed, as the conversation of lovers in a secluded and beautiful spot should be, but they came back often to the subject of Sir Timothy.

"If I have misunderstood your father," Francis declared, "and I admit that I have, it has been to some extent his own fault. To me he was always the deliberate scoundrel against any code of morals, a rebel against the law even if not a criminal in actual deeds. I honestly believed that the Walcott House was the scene of irreparable crimes, that your father was behind the murder, and that he was responsible in some sinister way for the disappearance of Reggie Wilmore. Most of these things seem to have been shams, like the fight last night."

She moved uneasily in her place. "I am glad I did not see that," she said, with a shiver.

"I think," he went on, "that the reason why your father insisted upon Lady Cynthia's and my presence there was that he meant it as a sort of allegory. Half the vices in life he claims are unmet."

Margaret passed her arm through his and leaned a little toward him.

"If you know just one thing I have never told you," she confessed, "I think that you would feel sorry for him. I do, more and more every day, because in a way that one thing is my fault."

Notwithstanding the warm sunshine, she suddenly shivered. Francis took her hands in his. They were cold and lifeless.

"I know that one thing, dear," he told her quietly.

She looked at him steadily. There was a questioning fear in her eyes.

"You know—"

"I know that your father killed Oliver Hilditch."

She suddenly broke out into a stream of words. There was passion in her tone and in her eyes. She was almost the accuser.

"My father was right, then!" she exclaimed. "He told me this morning that he believed that it was to you or to your friend at Scotland Yard that Walter had told his story. But you don't know—you don't know how terrible the temptation was—how I see I say it quite coolly—how Oliver Hilditch deceived to die. He was trusted by my father in South America, and he deceived him, he forged the letters which induced me to marry him. It was part of his scheme of revenge. This was the first time we had any of us met since. I told my father the truth that afternoon. He knew for the first time how my marriage came about. My husband had prayed me to keep silent. I refused. Then he became like a devil. We were there, we three, that night after you left, and Francis, as I live, if my father had not killed him I should have!"

"There was a time when I believed that you had," she reminded her. "I didn't behave like a prodigal, the holder of the letter of the law then, did I?"

She drew closer to him. "You were wonderful," she whispered.

"Dearest, your father has nothing to fear from me," he assured her tenderly. "On the contrary, I think that I can show him the way to safety."

She rose impulsively to her feet. "He will be here directly," she said. "He promised to come across at half-past twelve. Let us go and meet him. But, Francis—"

For a single moment she crept into his arms. Her lips met, her eyes shone into his. He held her away from him a moment later. The change was amazing. She was no longer a tired woman. She had become a girl again. Her eyes were set with happiness, the little lines had gone from about her mouth, she walked with all the spring of youth and happiness.

"It is marvelous," she whispered. "I never dreamed that I should ever be happy again."

They crossed the rustic bridge which led on to the lawn. Lady Cynthia came out of the house to meet them. She showed no signs of fatigue, but her eyes and her tone were full of anxiety.

"Margaret," she cried, "do you know that the hall is filled with your father's luggage, and that the car is ordered to take him to Southampton directly after lunch?"

Margaret and Francis exchanged glances.

"Sir Timothy may change his mind," the latter observed. "I have news for him directly he arrives."

On the other side of the wall they heard the whinnying of the old mare, the sound of galloping feet from all directions.

"Here he comes," Lady Cynthia exclaimed. "I shall go and meet him."

Francis laid his hand upon her arm. "Let me have a word with him first," he begged.

She hesitated.

"You are not going to say anything—that will make him want to go away."

"I am going to tell him something which I think will keep him at home."

Sir Timothy came through the postern-gate, a moment or two later. He waved his hat and crossed the lawn in their direction. Francis went alone to meet him and, as he drew near, was conscious of a little shock. His host, although he held himself bravely, seemed to have aged in the night.

"You know that I killed Oliver Hilditch," Sir Timothy said, his eyes fixed upon the other's.

"I know that you killed Oliver Hilditch," Francis repeated. "If I had been Margaret's father, I think that I should have done the same."

Sir Timothy seemed suddenly very much younger. The droop of his lips was no longer pathetic. There was a little humorous twinkle there.

"You, the great upholder of the law?" he murmured.

"I have heard the story of Oliver Hilditch's life," Francis replied. "I was partially responsible for saving him from the gallows. I repeat what I have said. And if you will—"

He laid his hand on Sir Timothy's shoulder for one moment. Instead of taking it he laid his hand upon Francis's shoulder.

"Ladson," he said, "we have thought a long time of one another. I thought you a prig moral to your finger-tips with the morality of the law and the small places. Perhaps I was tempted for that reason to give you a wrong impression of myself. But you must understand this. Though I have had my standard and lived up to it all my life, I am something of a black sheep. A man stole my wife. I did not trouble the law courts. I killed him."

"I have the blood of generations of lawyers in my veins," Francis declared, but I have read many a divorce case in which I think it would have been better and finer if the two men had met as you and that man met."

"I was born with the love of fighting in my bones," Sir Timothy went on. "In my younger days, I fought in every small war in the southern hemisphere. I fought, as you know, in our own war. I have loved to see men fight honestly and fairly."

"It is a man's hobby," Francis pronounced.

"I encouraged you deliberately to think," Sir Timothy went on, "what half the world thinks—that my parades at the Walcott House were master-ous styles of vice. They have, as a matter of fact, never been anything of the sort. The tragedies which are supposed to have taken place on my launch have been just as much tragedies as last night. Only I have not previously chosen to take the audience into my confidence. The greatest pugilists in the world have fought in my gymnasium, often, if you will, under illegal conditions, but there has never been a fight that was not fair."

"I believe that," Francis said.

"And there is another matter for which I take some blame," Sir Timothy went on. "The matter of Fairfax and Victor Eldlake. They were neither of them young men for whose loss the world is any the worse. Fairfax to some extent imposed upon me. He was brought to the Walcott House by a friend who should have known better. He sought my confidence. The story he told was exactly that of the mock drama upon the launch. Eldlake had taken his wife. He had no wish to appeal to the courts. He wished to fight, a point of view with which I entirely sympathized. I arranged a fight between the two. Eldlake ruined it and never turned up. My advice to Fairfax was, whenever he met Eldlake, to give him the soundest thrashing he could. That night at Soto's I caught sight of Fairfax some time before dinner. He was talking to the woman who had been his wife, and he had evidently been drinking. He drew me on one side. 'Tonight,' he told me, 'I am going to settle accounts with Eldlake.' 'Where?' I asked. 'Here,' he answered. 'He went out to the theater. I upstairs to dine. That was the extent of the knowledge I possessed which enabled me to predict some unwanted happening that night. Fairfax was a bedridden and bedridden decadent who had not the courage afterward to face what he had done. That is all.'"

The hand slipped from Francis's shoulder. Francis, with a smile, held out his own. They stood there for a moment with clasped hands—a queer, detached moment, as it seemed to Francis, in a life which during the last few months had been full of vivid sensations. From outside came the busy sounds of the drowsy summer morning—the distant hum of a lawnmower machine, the drone of a reaper in the field beyond, the soft leaping of the stream against the stone steps. The man whose hand he was holding seemed to Francis to have become somehow transformed. It was as though he had dropped a mask and were showing a more human, a more kindly self. Francis wondered no longer at the halting gait of the horses in the field.

"You'll be good to Margaret?" Sir Timothy begged. "She's had a wretched time."

Francis smiled confidently.

"I'm going to make up for it, sir," he promised. "And this South American trip," he continued, "they turned toward the French windows, 'you'll call that off.'"

Sir Timothy hesitated.

"I am not quite sure."

When they reached the garden, Lady Cynthia was alone. She scarcely glanced at Francis. Her eyes were anxiously fixed upon his companion.

"Margaret has gone in to make the cocktails herself," she explained. "We have both sworn off drinks for the rest of our lives, and we know Edgar can't be trusted to make one without."

"I'll go and help her," Francis declared.

Lady Cynthia passed her arm through Sir Timothy's.

"I want to know about South America," she begged. "The sight of those trunks worries me."

Sir Timothy's casual reply was obviously a subterfuge. They crossed the lawn and the rustic bridge, almost in silence, passing underneath the pergola of roses to the sheltered garden at the further end. Then Lady Cynthia paused.

"You are not going to South America," she pleaded, "alone?"

Sir Timothy took her hands.

"My dear," he said, "listen, please, to my confession. I am a fraud. I am not a purveyor of new sensations for a decadent troop of weary, fashionable people. I am a fraud sometimes even to myself. I have had good luck in material things. I have had luck in the precincts, the emotional side of life. It has made something of an artificial character of me, on the surface at any rate. I am really a simple, elderly man who loves fresh air, clean honest things, games and a healthy life. I have no ambitions except those connected with sport. I don't even want to climb to the topmost niches in the world of finance. I think you have looked at me through the wrong colored spectacles. You have had a whimsical fancy for a character which does not exist."

"What I have seen," Lady Cynthia answered, "I have seen through no spectacles at all—with my own eyes. But what I have seen, even, does not count. There is something else."

"I am within a few weeks of my fiftieth birthday," Sir Timothy reminded her, "and you, I believe, are twenty-nine."

"My dear man," Lady Cynthia assured him fervently, "you are the only person in the world who can keep me from feeling forty-nine."

"And your people—"

"Heavens! My people, for the first time in their lives, will count me a brilliant success. Lady Cynthia declared, "You'll probably have to tend and dote on me, and I shall be looked upon as the fairy child who has restored the family fortunes."

Sir Timothy leaned a little toward her.

"Last of all," he said, and this time his voice was not quite so steady, "are you really sure that you care for me, dear, because I have loved you so long, and I have wanted love so badly, and it is so hard to believe—"

It was the moment, it seemed to her, for which she had prayed. She was in his arms, tired no longer, with all the splendid fire of life in her love-lit eyes and throbbing pulses. Around them the bees were humming, and a soft summer breeze shook the roses and brought little wafts of perfume from the carnation bed.

"There is nothing in life," Lady Cynthia murmured brokenly, "so wonderful as this."

Francis and Margaret came out from the house, the former carrying a silver tray. They had spent a considerable time over their task, but Lady Cynthia and Sir Timothy were still absent. Redges followed them, a little worried.

"Shall I ring the gong, madam?" he asked Margaret. "Cook has taken such pains with her omelette."

"I think you had better, Redges," Margaret assented.

The gong rang out—and rang again. Presently Lady Cynthia and Sir Timothy appeared upon the bridge and crossed the lawn. They were walking a little apart. Lady Cynthia was looking down at some roses which she had gathered. Sir Timothy's unconcern seemed a trifle overdone. Margaret laughed very softly.

"A stepmother, Francis?" she whispered. "Just fancy Cynthia as a stepmother!"
